This is a brief statement concerning the monograph and the textbooks being prepared by me, Professor Ph.M. Kanarev for publication, being ignored by the academicians of the Russian Academy of Sciences, which help the Russian authorities to foster ignorance of science for schoolchildren, students, postgraduates and young scientists, which are our future. There is no end to the mutual criminal behaviour of the Russian scientific and educational authorities and the rectors of all universities in Russia. The cause is simple: it is the overall poverty of scientific intellect, which is transferred from a stereotypical scientific thinking process to unsuspecting students, leading only to ignorance.

I had not the faintest idea concerning force, which made me think about the impropriety of the Lorentz transformation results when I was a first year student at the Department of Physics of Leningrad State University. I was compelled to stop the process of filling my memory with false physical information by quitting the university after the successful completion of the first course in the year of 1956.

Nevertheless, I am grateful to everybody who taught me at the Leningrad State University at that golden sacred moral time, which makes me hope that the scientists and the teaching body of my dear former Leningrad State University will be the first to stop the process of turning its students into intellectual morons.
